Class of 2010 Successes

From tax accountants to teachers and from medical researchers to marketing directors, many members of the Class of 2010 were ready to begin their first post-college jobs immediately after commencement. By May 15, 2010, 35 graduates (24%) had obtained employment in a field related to their major.

Twenty-one members of the Class of 2010 (14%) were accepted to professional and graduate programs at the following universities as of May 15, 2010:

Sciences:
- University of Kentucky School of Medicine (full tuition scholarship)
- Indiana University School of Medicine
- University of Evansville School of Physical Therapy
- Mountain State University Physician Assistant program
- Samford University McWhorter School of Pharmacy
- University of Louisville masters program in Department of Anatomical Sciences and Neurobiology
- University of Kentucky Ph.D. program in Chemistry
- Eastern Kentucky University masters program in Applied Ecology
- Michigan Tech masters program in Forestry

Criminal Justice:
- University of South Florida masters program in Criminal Justice
- Eastern Kentucky University masters program in Criminal Justice

Business:
- St. Louis University John Cook School of Business Master of Business Administration Program
- Northern Kentucky University masters program in Computer Information Technology

Law:
- University of Louisville Brandeis School of Law

Public Policy:
- Carnegie Mellon University Heinz College masters program in Public Policy and Management

English:
- West Virginia University Master of Fine Arts program
- Radford University masters program in English

Library Science
- University of Kentucky masters program in Library Science

Religion:
- Asbury Theological Seminary masters program in Biblical Studies
- Asbury Theological Seminary masters program in Divinity