Mission Statement

Kentucky Wesleyan College, in partnership with the United Methodist Church, fosters a liberal arts education that nourishes, stimulates and prepares future leaders intellectually, spiritually and physically to achieve success in life.
Dear Best Friend,

I often think of our donors as best friends. I have even called a first-time donor to Kentucky Wesleyan College my new best friend. I realize some of us are just getting to know one another, but think about it.

When someone shares our values, believes in our mission, supports our family and invests in our vision for the future, is that not a candidate for “best friend?” As you share your friendship with Kentucky Wesleyan College, as you attend campus events, volunteer your service and your financial support, we thank you for all you do for our students.

Let me tell you about some more of my best friends – our students. My excitement for the accomplishments of our students could not be higher. I had the privilege of shaking the hands of 110 smiling graduates as they crossed the stage in Hocker-Hall Grove on May 13th. While many graduating seniors are very composed and professional as they accept their college diploma, some can’t help but radiate a positive energy. I shake their hands in that instant after they’ve held their diploma for the first time and I absorb as much of that energy as I can.

I believe that our faculty and staff have provided those graduates with the knowledge and skills they need to make a positive difference in the world. And I believe our Class of 2006 will become contributing members of our communities.

As you read this edition of KW Today, we have just welcomed a new group of friends – our incoming freshmen, the class of 2010. They are a little nervous, but they are energetic, they are eager, and they are large in number! With about 400 new students, we need your friendship even more.

Included in this issue on page 22 is our 2005 – 2006 Honor Roll and Annual Report. Please take some time to read the names of all the alumni and best friends who give so generously to Kentucky Wesleyan College.

I want you to know that your gifts are being carefully managed and invested well in the lives of our promising students, enabling quality programs of education to thrive, and laying paths to the future.

On behalf of our students who may not have the opportunity to sit at the table with good friends and donors, please accept our thanks. You are wonderful and I appreciate your giving. We count you among our best friends.

Anne Cairns Federlein, Ph.D.
President

We did it again!!!

Kentucky Wesleyan College has just learned that U.S. News and World Report has once again rated KWC as one of the top ten best educational values in the South in their annual 2007 college report. The annual ranking lists Kentucky Wesleyan as the eighth best value in the South for Southern Comprehensive Colleges. In addition, Kentucky Wesleyan received distinguished recognition for the third straight year by The Princeton Review as one of the 146 colleges named “Best in the Southeast.”

Welcome freshman class! Here is your first glimpse of the Class of 2010. Including freshmen and transfers, the college will have over 400 new students for the 2006 – 2007 academic year. This is the largest incoming class since 1966.
Economic impact of KWC

Kentucky Wesleyan College accounted for an estimated direct economic impact of $58.7 million on the Owensboro and Daviess county community during fiscal year 2005, according to a report by EconImpact of Louisville.

President Anne Cairns Federlein, Ph.D. said, “We are proud to contribute to the vibrant economy. As we expand the academic programs, enrollment and campus facilities, the college will continue to make a significant impact on our community in the future.”

Overall the college, its employees, students and visitors spent $27.2 million in the community. The 1,513 alumni who live in Daviess County contributed $19.6 million increased earnings and $11 million in social benefits due to positive life-style choices.

Kentucky Wesleyan employs 158 full-time faculty and staff with a $5.7 million payroll in 2005. Additionally, a total of 7,800 hours of volunteer work were supplied by 300 Kentucky Wesleyan students last year.

Oak and Ivy induction

Six Kentucky Wesleyan College students and one faculty member were inducted into The Order of Oak and Ivy, the highest honor given to juniors and seniors. It was the 52nd anniversary of this prestigious honor society. The inductees are, first row left to right: Yvonne Taylor ’58, professor of education at KWC for 16 years, who retired in June; Jennifer Hendricks, Central City; and Marky Mylkova Allison, Czech Republic. Second row l. to r.: Adam Saalwachter, Owensboro; Brandon Ellis, Glasgow; and Abby Leistner, Holland, Ind. Not pictured is Andrew Young, Princeton, Ky.

Impact Audio Theater wins competition

Impact Audio Theater, an indoor marching drum line and winter guard sponsored by the band programs at KWC and Owensboro High School, won their division in the Tri-State Circuit Finals for the second year.

Impact includes seven Kentucky Wesleyan students, as well as other regional high school and college students. The director is James Powell, percussion instructor, and Michelle Jones, color guard coordinator, both from Kentucky Wesleyan College.

Featured speakers

Dr. Anthony M. Brooks, Sr. Ed.D. was the key note speaker for the Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Day of Celebration. Rev. Brooks led the civil rights movement in his hometown of Henderson, Ky, where he served as president of the local NAACP chapter.

Dr. Aaron Thompson, vice president for academic affairs at Eastern Kentucky University, spoke on “African American Families: Historically Resilient.” He addressed some of the misunderstandings about the family and pointed out the societal influences, positive and negative, that shape African American families.

Louisville writer Genie K. Potter spoke at the “Women in Leadership” lecture series on “A Kaleidoscope of Kentucky Women: 200 Years of Spirit and Vision.” Potter addressed Kentucky history from the perspective of its women and how they changed communities, institutions, the military, schools, and the environment.

George Russell, international elections consultant, spoke on “Exporting Democracy.” He is the former executive director of the Kentucky State Board of Elections and Kentucky Registry of Election Finance. He has served as technical assistant, observer and supervisor of democratic elections in Albania, Cambodia, El Salvador, Russia, Kosovo and other countries since 1997.

Hahn endowed scholarship

Kentucky Wesleyan College received a gift of $100,000 from Kwangsoon Hahn to establish the Yu Hak Hahn Endowed Scholarship in honor of her husband, Yu Hak Hahn, a 1958 graduate of KWC. The scholarship will be awarded to a full-time student who is majoring in a science discipline of either biology, chemistry or physics.

KWC President Anne Cairns Federlein, Ph.D., said, “Science is an important component in a liberal arts education. There is no doubt that students today, and in the future, will be better educated for the competitive world of science because of the generosity of Dr. and Mrs. Hahn.”

Dr. Hahn gave a challenge grant of $1 million to the science center at Kentucky Wesleyan College, spearheading a drive that raised enough money to begin construction on the newest campus facility. The Yu Hak Hahn Center for the Sciences was dedicated on September 30, 2005.
Ten new faculty

Ten new faculty joined KWC this fall. A national search process attracted candidates from as far away as California and Alaska. Four of the positions are new, as established through the 2010 strategic plan. Five new faculty replace faculty who have retired or resigned.

Dr. Juliana Maria da Silva is the new assistant professor of public service. She has her D.PA from Golden Gate University and previously taught at the University of San Francisco and also served as the education program coordinator in adult education for the Calif. Department of Education.

Dr. Kimberly Garth-James joins the faculty as associate professor of public service. She has her D.PA from Golden Gate University and previously taught at the University of San Francisco and also served as the education program coordinator in adult education for the Calif. Department of Education.

Dr. Cynthia Kinney comes to KWC as assistant professor of middle grades education. She recently earned her Ph.D. in curriculum and instruction from The University of Toledo and was a school counselor for Summerfield Schools in Michigan.

Joining the faculty as assistant professor of Spanish and chair of modern languages is Dr. Martha Kosir-Widenbauer. She earned her Ph.D. from Vanderbilt University and was a teacher, interpreter and translator for languages by Nichole, Inc.

John Ragsdale is the new assistant professor of religion and chair of the religion and philosophy department. He received his M.A. from the Assemblies of God Theological Seminary and is finishing his Ph.D. from Marquette University. He was previously assistant and adjunct professor at Trinity Bible College.

The science department faculty will be joined by Dr. Justin Rosemier, assistant professor of biology. He has a Ph.D. from Michigan Technological University, where he was a researcher for five years.

Dr. Eugene Thomas, D.M. from Indiana University School of Music, is associate professor of music and director of the Wesleyan Singers. He most recently taught at Virginia Community College and Bluefield College.
Outstanding Faculty and staff honored

Four members of the faculty and staff at Kentucky Wesleyan were honored in April for their outstanding contributions to the college during the 2005 – 2006 academic year.

Dr. Roger Gardner, professor of health and physical education, received the President’s Award for Teaching Excellence and Campus Leadership. He earned a B.S. and M.S. from the University of Delaware and a Ph.D. from Purdue University. Gardner has taught for 16 years at the college.

Dr. Bernie Bettinelli, assistant professor of psychology, received the Outstanding Teacher Award as voted by the student body. He earned a B.A. from Holy Cross College, a M.A. from Wake Forest University and an Ed.D. from the University of Massachusetts. Bettinelli joined the faculty at KWC in 2002. This is the second time he has been honored by the students as Outstanding Teacher.

Dr. Lynette Taylor, assistant professor of psychology, received the Academic Advising Award as voted by the student body. She earned a B.S. from the University of Alabama and a M.A. and Ph.D. from the University of Florida. She came to KWC in 2002.

Lucy Kaelin, administrative assistant to the Vice President for Finance/Accounts Payable, was named Outstanding Staff Member. Voted for this award by her peers, Kaelin was recognized for her service and commitment to the college. She has a 23 year career with Kentucky Wesleyan.

KWC student claims crown

Hope Hamilton, a senior at Kentucky Wesleyan College, was crowned Kentucky Mountain Laurel Festival Queen in May. She is a corporate communications major from Versailles, Ky.

She is the second student from KWC in six years to earn the title. Kristy Nelson ’03 won the crown in 2000. The Mountain Laurel Festival, celebrating its 76th year, is the second oldest event in Kentucky. Colleges and universities across the Commonwealth of Kentucky send a representative to compete for the coveted crown.

Leadership recognized

President Anne Cairns Federlein, Cheryl King, and Cindra Stiff were all recently recognized for their leadership.

President Federlein was selected to a 17-member committee to seek higher education opportunities and participation in the Owensboro area. The committee includes representatives from private and public colleges as well as government, economic development and nonprofit agencies.

Dr. Cheryl King ’70, executive vice president for external affairs, has been elected to the Leadership Kentucky Class of 2006.

In addition, she was appointed to the Board of Directors of the National Center for Family Literacy for a three-year term. Located in Louisville, the organization is the worldwide leader in family literacy, pioneering educational initiatives that open pathways to continuous life improvement for the nation’s most at-risk children and families.

Cindra Stiff, vice president of finance and treasurer, received the Owensboro Business and Professional Women’s inaugural “Lift Up the Leaders Award” in accounting and finance for the month of March. She has been with the college for 22 years.

Chinese educators to teach

Two educators from China, Baiyi Liu and Aiming Liu, are teaching Chinese language classes at Kentucky Wesleyan and Owensboro Community & Technical College this year. All four Owensboro colleges and universities and the Public Life Foundation of Owensboro are contributing partners for this endeavor. Both men have graduate degrees.

This fall the guest faculty are teaching introduction to Chinese culture and elementary Chinese I. The course offerings will be similar for the spring term with a second semester Chinese language class available.

“China is becoming one of the big players in the global market,” said Mike Fagan, KWC academic dean. “This is a good opportunity for students and others in the community to learn.” Some spaces will be open for auditing the classes, Fagan said.

Owensboro area residents who are interested in the classes may sign up along with high school and college students.

KWC is providing office space on campus for the guest educators, who also serve as faculty moderators for about a dozen international students.

English professor to edit literary books

Dr. Tony Lee, assistant professor of English at Kentucky Wesleyan, has been commissioned to edit a collection of articles on literary mentoring entitled: Varieties of Mentoring Experience: Representations of Mentoring in Eighteenth-Century British Literature, to be published by University of Delaware Press in 2008.

Lee earned a bachelors degree in English and history from the University of Texas, a masters degree in English from the University of Chicago and a Ph.D. from the University of Arkansas.
Students celebrate independent higher education

Nine students from Kentucky Wesleyan College traveled to Frankfort in February to join other students and administrators from Kentucky’s nonprofit, independent colleges and universities to celebrate independent higher education. The event was sponsored by the Association of Independent Kentucky Colleges and Universities.

College hosts several youth events

Kentucky Wesleyan and the Green River Chapter of the Kentucky Society of Professional Engineers hosted two events during the spring semester.

The first event was the annual Green River Regional MathCounts competition for sixth, seventh and eighth grade students. MathCounts is a national math enrichment, coaching and competition program that increases enthusiasm and enhances achievement in middle school mathematics throughout the United States.

High school and college students met on campus for the National Engineers Day. The program offered a series of technical presentations focused on the engineering and science professional.

Over 500 middle and high school students from six counties met on campus in March for the annual “Youth Summit” meeting sponsored by the Owensboro Parks Department and the Youth Council of Owensboro. The six counties represented are Daviess, Hancock, Henderson, Hopkins, McLean, Muhlenberg and Ohio. This marks the third year KWC has hosted this event.

SID Roy Pickerill honored

Roy Pickerill ’75, KWC public relations director and sports information director, was selected president of the newly formed Division II Sports Information Directors Association, consisting of 281 members. The selection took place at the recent College Sports Information Directors of America (CoSIDA) convention in Nashville. Pickerill has been SID at Kentucky Wesleyan for 19 years and is a member of the CoSIDA Hall of Fame.

He was also recently selected for inclusion in Who’s Who of Executives and Professionals by Empire Who’s Who 2006 registry.

In addition, Pickerill received the Best in the Nation award for the KWC men’s and women’s basketball media guide for cover design, quality of content and layout and design in the multisport category for NCAA Division II and NAIA schools. This marks the 30th CoSIDA award and the 19th Best in the Nation award for him.

New KWC Trustees

W. Jeffery Foreman ’83 and Todd Love ’76 have been appointed to the Kentucky Wesleyan College Board of Trustees.

Foreman is a partner in Progressive Land Title of Indiana, which operates six title insurance companies in Indiana, and is a partner in Old National Title of Ohio, which operates four title insurance companies in Ohio. He also serves as a partner in Centrigroup Lending, LLC, a wholesale lending operation in four states, and All Homes Lending, LLC, a retail lending operation, both located in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Love is in his seventh year as senior pastor at Settle Memorial United Methodist Church in Owensboro. He has served in the Kentucky Conference of the United Methodist Church for 31 years, including four years as the district superintendent in Madisonville.

In addition to the new members, the KWC Board designated the Rev. Dr. W. Glenn Sowards ’53 and G. Chad Perry III ’50 as emeritus members of the Board. Sowards, a retired United Methodist minister, served on the Board of Trustees for 24 years. Perry, a Paintsville lawyer, served on the Board for 11 years.

New ex-officio members of the Board are Charles H. Epperson ’59, president of the KWC Alumni Association, and Craig M. Brunson, a KWC junior and president of the Student Government Association.
We at Kentucky Wesleyan College are proud of our large increase in enrollment this fall. We are especially proud of our freshman class, full of bright, enthusiastic students who anticipate a wonderful four-year journey… with new friendships and adventures, challenging faculty, and academic excellence. They are here, in part, because of your gifts to the General Scholarship Fund.

This magazine includes our 2005 – 2006 Honor Roll & Annual Report. Each year we list the names of those who have shared their resources with Kentucky Wesleyan College. You have opened your heart and made the important decision that Kentucky Wesleyan is worth your investment. On behalf of our students, thank you. Their success depends on the many alumni, friends, businesses and foundations who support the college.

A college education is one of the most valuable investments anyone can make in preparation for a successful future. And the future demands quality preparation. The message we like to share as we recruit new students is simply this: We are affordable and our students succeed.

Today Kentucky Wesleyan College presents more opportunities for learning, innovation, and experience than ever before. Thanks to our dedicated faculty, to our eleven new academic programs and to our new facilities, Kentucky Wesleyan prepares future leaders to achieve success in life.

Thanks to academic, athletic, talent and church scholarships that are all supported by your gifts to the General Scholarship Fund, 98% of our students receive help to make their education a reality. The college provides $3.4 million in financial assistance to our students, over and above federal and state grants and endowed scholarships. The General Scholarship Fund is essential for sustaining the quality of a Kentucky Wesleyan College education.

I hope you enjoy reading Kentucky Wesleyan Today. I’m sure the information included in this edition will give you more than enough reasons to make a gift to the General Scholarship Fund.

Kentucky Wesleyan College truly is an institution unlike any other. Thank you for all you do for our students.

Phonathon 2006: October 1 – October 12
It’s the first two weeks of October. Listen! Do you hear the phone ringing? It just may be a student from Kentucky Wesleyan College calling for the Fall Phonathon.

Even if you’re stranded on a desert island, our students will try to find you. They are anxious to talk to you, to update your information, to tell you about the great things happening on campus and to learn more about your life and your career since you left the campus.

And yes, they will be asking for your consideration of a gift to the General Scholarship Fund. Did you know the General Scholarship Fund benefits 98% of our students? That’s the best reason to give – our students. Please say “yes” when our students call!

A planned gift to Kentucky Wesleyan
CD’s coming due? Tired of small dividend checks? Want to make a great gift to your alma mater? A charitable gift annuity may be the answer …

Here’s how it works: You make a contribution to KWC, and we guarantee to make annual fixed payments to you. It’s that simple … a contract for fixed payments for the rest of your life based on your age and the amount of your gift. Just go to the chart below, find your age, and multiply your gift by the percentage shown. If you’re 80 and gave $50,000, for example, we would send $1,000 quarterly checks to you for a total of $4,000 a year as long as you live. Then, whatever is left, will go to your gift to KWC.

Shamargaret Temple walks through the “faculty corridor.” She received her bachelor of science degree with a major in criminal justice.

Jayne Powell is congratulated by Dr. Bernie Bettinelli, who was voted Outstanding Teacher by the student body.

Jason Harrison waits his turn to receive his diploma.
Another record-breaking crowd attended Alumni Weekend 2006, highlighted by the Alumni Celebration Dinner and Hall of Fame inductees on Saturday night. Twenty-eight members of the Class of 1956 were awarded medallions to commemorate the 50th anniversary of their graduation from Kentucky Wesleyan College. It was the largest gathering of 50-year alumni in the history of the college.

A highlight of the Alumni Celebration Dinner was an appearance by “The King,” aka Danny Garland ’67. Here Elvis serenades KWC President Federlein.

The Halos entertained at several events during the weekend with songs from the 40s, 50s, and 60s. Shown are Carole Robertson, Kay Raftery, a member of the KWC development staff, and Lisa Barnett.
The 2006 Alumni Hall of Fame honorees included the following distinguished alumni: Beverly Byers-Pevitts ’61, the first KWC alumna to become president of a collegiate institution; Virginia Harris “Shorty” Combs ’22, pioneer of girls high school basketball in Kentucky; Dr. C. Kenneth Peters ’57, servant physician and co-founder and friend of The Healing Place; and the Rev. Dr. Harold Dorsey ’38, preacher to Appalachia.

The daughters of Virginia Harris Combs ’22, Connie Combs Kincer and Carol Combs Daugherty ’51 accepted her medallion.

C. Kenneth Peters ’57 and his daughter.

Other important awards presented by the Alumni Association included: Glenn Sowards ’53, the Outstanding Alumni award, which is the highest honor the Association can bestow; M. Allen Kirtley ’60 and Jerry Miller ’60 both received the Alumni Achievement award; Holley Skidmore ’31, Alumni Service award; KWC History Professor Dr. Dan Bradshaw, the Gus E. Paris Distinguished Service award; and retired KWC maintenance supervisor Ray Carden, Honorary Alumnus award.
Under the leadership of Adam Shourds ’99, the Campus Ministries program provides many opportunities for students to participate in the general religious life on campus. An important and sometimes life changing part of that program is student mission trips.

Moss Pointe, Mississippi

Spring break for most college students means the sun, the beach and the ocean. However, for many KWC students, spring break 2006 involved traveling to other states, even other countries, to minister to the needs of others. One mission trip to Moss Pointe, Mississippi involved 26 students and seven adults who spent a week helping victims of Hurricane Katrina.

“We were welcomed by Green Pastures Christian Church and St. Paul United Methodist Church, both African American congregations,” Shourds said. “The students were overwhelmed by their hospitality. The congregation was so thankful that we were down there. It was a big deal to them that we were interacting with their church.”

The group began each day with breakfast and devotion. Lunch was eaten at the work site. Shourds said, “The students worked hard and were passionate about the work. No one had to motivate them. They didn’t want to get off the roof to eat lunch.”

The students split into four groups each day, working on roofs, insulation and dry wall. Shourds said, “They learned some skills they never knew.”

Maeghan Garrett, a junior from White Plains, Ky., said, “We did roofing and sheet rock. I’m afraid of heights, so I was proud that I could get up on a roof. The first day I just sat down and scooted around the roof, but I got over it.”

Worship was a large part of the mission trip. Garrett said, “Each night we had a worship service and sang. We then broke into small groups of five and talked about the day and had prayer. One of the best things about the trip is that I got to know more people and I made good friends within my small group.”

Participating in the Katrina mission trip made a profound difference in the lives of many KWC students. Nathan Cobb, a senior from Owensboro, said, “A mission trip is a different experience internally for everyone and it’s hard to express. On this particular mission trip, we were not witnessing through words, but by serving.

It was hard work and I didn’t see the final result of the work we did on those houses. I was a small part of rebuilding a house but I still know what I did will have a lasting impact on the community. It’s the same with God – you don’t see results this day or the week after, but it has a lasting impact.”

Both Maeghan and Nathan were overwhelmed at the destruction left by Katrina. “I thought it would be cleaned up because so much time had passed,” Maeghan said. “There were houses caved in and a car in a swimming pool. Houses were condemned because of the flooding.”

Nathan added, “It had been six months since the hurricane, so we had no idea what it really looked like at the time of the hurricane, but people have been working hard down there. They offered us the best of what they had – unconditionally, especially from the church where we stayed.”

Because of the rewarding experience they had in Mississippi, both Maeghan and Nathan worked during June and July with Sun Teams. Nathan traveled throughout Eastern Kentucky participating in Bible Schools and sharing his faith and message with others. Maeghan worked in Amherst, Mass. with creative ministry, including sign language, art and music.

Wroclaw, Poland

Other KWC students traveled much further than Mississippi for their spring break mission trip – they went to Wroclaw, Poland. Six students, two alumni and one KWC staff member worked in the urban, inner city slums of Poland where buildings are still damaged from WWII.

The group stayed at a Baptist church located in the middle of the inner city and helped with several church projects. They also worked with children and high school and college students, building relationships and teaching American culture.

Jeremy ’97 and Laura Sparks Vincent ’04 are missionaries in Poland and the KWC group worked with them at a Kid’s Club in the poverty area of Poland. Alicia Kittinger, a sophomore from Hanson, Ky., said, “We worked with high school students in small groups, talking about our culture and speaking English with them.

With the university students we also met in small groups,” she continued. “There is no talk of God in the classroom, so we would go out with them and talk about God and Christianity.”

The students also had the opportunity to make side trips in Poland. “Auschwitz was an awesome experience – the museum, gas chamber, crematory – we didn’t say a word while we were there.

We learned about Polish culture and we heard all the American stereotypes,” Alicia said. “This trip taught me communication skills and to step outside my comfort zone. I would definitely do it again.”
And she did. After a May training session in Louisville through Edge Outreach, Alicia traveled to Costa Rica over the summer to help with water purification.

Mandeville, Jamaica

Yet another student mission trip during spring break included Daniel Blandford, a sophomore from Owensboro, who traveled with four students from Brescia University to Mandeville, Jamaica. They were accompanied by Dr. Suzanne Rose, KWC associate professor of English and Father Andy Gardner.

Before leaving for Jamaica the students collected toys, school supplies, medicine and non-perishable food items to take with them. Daniel said, “We all felt we were getting more out of the trip than we were giving.”

Daniel is a member of Catholics in Action at Kentucky Wesleyan. “Mandeville is our sister diocese. We were able to teach at a Catholic school and we also did some maintenance work. I hope to go again this spring break. We want to get more students involved and raise money to help build a house in Mandeville.”

Summer Ministries

Although mission trips are a big part of the Campus Ministry program, there is much more to offer the students. A Summer Ministry team was organized at KWC for the first time and traveled throughout the state in June and July, working with churches, three Bible Schools, the Kentucky Annual Conference, the Conference Youth Discipleship Retreat at Lindsey Wilson College, and the KWC Mission Camp.

Thirty middle school students from Settle Memorial UMC in Owensboro and St. Paul UMC in Louisville attended the KWC Mission Camp in June. The team included Brittney Yates, a sophomore from Henderson; Ryan Brunson, a senior from Louisville; Tammy Woods, a senior from Covington; Ryan Adams, a senior from Shelbyville; Eric White, a senior from Madisonville; and Scott ’06 and Jackie Stanley Newman ’04.

Brittney explained what she learned from the summer ministry team. “It has really opened my eyes to the many, many different ways God can work. Whether through Vacation Bible School, a worship service, a Celebrate Recovery meeting, Camp Loucon, or a youth lock-in, God is at work everywhere and in every single person. I also learned that everything we have in this life is not ours. Everything we have belongs entirely to Christ: our time, our stuff, our relationships, and our gifts. What we do with all of these is our choice, but ultimately should be turned back over to Him.”

School Semester Ministries

During the school year students also have the opportunity to participate with BASIC (Brothers and Sisters in Christ, a United Methodist student organization), CIA (Catholics in Action), and CROSS (Christ Reaching Out Saving Students, a Baptist organization).

Shourds said he hopes to take another group of students back to Moss Pointe during fall break in October. “Early in the semester we want the students to come together and serve and get to know each other in a unique way.” Other plans call for an agricultural mission trip to Central Mexico during winter break in January.

Adam Shourds is providing the leadership needed so KWC students can grow in their faith. The Campus Ministry program is reaching out and offering students the opportunity to “step out of their comfort zone” and serve others.
Sororities and fraternities have come a long way since the founding of The Flat Hat Club (FHC) on November 11, 1750, by six students at the College of William and Mary. FHC has the distinction of being the first in a long line of Greek-letter fraternities and sororities found on college campuses today.

In the same fashion, sororities and fraternities at Kentucky Wesleyan have evolved since they were first established as local chapters on the Winchester Campus. One thing that has not changed is the diversity in the women and men who belong to sororities and fraternities and bond together to form life-long friendships.

“The best part of joining a sorority is knowing you’re never alone. When you come to college and don’t know where to go, there is a group of women there for you no matter what,” said Jackie Arnold, a senior from Louisville who is a member of Sigma Kappa.

“Joining a sorority,” said Cathy Meeks Bishop ’78, was a wonderful part of my college experience. Kappa Delta provided me an arena to meet some wonderful women who would influence my life, then and now. Many of us were in each other’s weddings, we rejoiced in the birth or adoption of our children, and have remained ‘sisters’ throughout the past 30 years.”

Sally Allen Crenshaw ’67 echoed those sentiments. “I joined AOPi for the camaraderie and wanting to have a connection.”

Membership numbers have always fluctuated within the Greek system at KWC. Alpha Omicron Pi and Phi Delta Theta, both a big part of campus life in the 60s and 70s, had to close their doors during a period of decreasing enrollment and membership. Bishop said there were only eight members when she pledged Kappa Delta in 1976.

Bryan Hill, a sophomore from Hopkinsville and a current member of Sigma Nu, said, “We are a small group but we’re trying to get our numbers up. We work with alumni and they help financially.” Hill’s father, Phil Hill ’77, was a Sigma Nu at KWC. “I heard him talk about his good times, so I accepted an open bid. It’s a good way to meet new people. I don’t know why people don’t join fraternities. I think it’s the mindset. Parents think fraternities party a lot.”

“The perception at Kentucky Wesleyan is, you are either an athlete or a Greek,” said Ryan Brunson, a junior from Louisville. “Many who play sports feel their team is to them, what a fraternity or sorority is to the Greeks.” Arnold agreed. “Students don’t join because of sports, probably more guys than girls because it’s a time management thing.”

Athletics didn’t get in the way of Lance James ’93 joining a fraternity. He played both soccer and baseball when he was a student at KWC. “Sigma Nu provided a place to meet and develop friendships with people I might not otherwise have known. I keep up with a number of the guys and about 15 – 20 meet every summer for a reunion.”

Students have other reasons for joining a fraternity or sorority. Brunson, who is president of Sigma Phi Epsilon, said, “I had no interest in joining when I came because of the stereotype. I was influenced by Scott Newman ’06 and Jeremy Vincent ’97, both good Christians, so I figured if it was good enough for them, it was for me. Living in Deacon gives me a spirit of community and family.”

The three fraternities have chapter rooms in Deacon where they conduct meetings, and the two sororities have recently moved their suites from Massie Hall to the second floor of the Barnard-Jones Administration Building, to allow for renovation of Massie into residence hall suites. That wasn’t always the case.

According to Don Schmied ’69 who was a Sigma Nu, the fraternities had houses in the 60s. “Sigma Nu was located on Allen Street and I think Phi Delts were on Scherm Road and Sig Eps were located on Frederica. Probably due to low membership the fraternities couldn’t afford a house and moved back on campus.”

Sigma Phi Epsilon members recently renovated their chapter room, with the help of Brad Phelps ’02, Josh Davis ’03, and Mark Luckett ’95. Phelps said, “Through national headquarters we found out we could create an Alumni and Volunteer Corporation to make upgrades.

We put together a proposal and it was approved,” Phelps explained. “We repainted the rooms and installed wood flooring in the chapter room and carpet in the study room. Furniture was purchased, along with lighting, a television and computers for the study room.”

Providing community service is an integral part of fraternity and sorority life. In addition to community service, each chapter sponsors fundraising events for local and national philanthropies.

Jeremy Johnson, a senior from Munfordville and a member of Sigma Alpha Mu, said, “We do Bounce for Beats for the Heart Association, and trick or treat for Pediatric Aids and last year we had a pie-in-the-face contest to raise money for Alzheimer’s. We also sent school supplies to Jamaica with the KWC mission trip this spring.”
Kappa Delta also has several projects. Hope Hamilton, a senior from Versailles said, “Our national philanthropy is Girl Scouts and our local is Girls Incorporated and Prevent Child Abuse America. Each year we have a Shamrock project to benefit both. We also had a Girl Scout slumber party for 35 girls.”

Sigma Kappa’s main philanthropy is the Spring Rock Fest that benefits Alzheimer’s. Arnold said, “We also work with Inherit the Earth where we go to nursing homes and visit the residents and we hold a Memory Walk every year for Alzheimer’s.”

Phanthropies have always been a part of the Greek system at KWC. Laura Warren Bassett ’93 said Sigma Kappa worked with Alzheimer’s when she was a student. “We visited a local nursing home and did an annual walk-a-thon to raise funds for research.”

James remembers Sigma Nu supporting the Boys and Girls Club of Owensboro through car washes and other fundraisers in the 90s. Crenshaw said AOPi provided service to the Rockport Orphanage and the Arthritis Foundation when she was a student.

Fraternities and sororities also provide leadership opportunities for members. Bassett said she served in a leadership role during her three years as a member of Sigma Kappa. “I was president my senior year. My leadership experience certainly helped to prepare me for my current job, working with and serving the general public daily in a healthcare capacity.”

In her second year as president of Kappa Delta, Hamilton said, “Learning how to deal with people and different issues and preparing reports will help me once I get out of college.”

As president of Sigma Phi Epsilon, Brunson said, “I have to stay on top of things and there’s always something that needs to be done. It’s a challenge and ultimately what doesn’t get done, you have to do it as president. It’s a leadership role where I feel I have the opportunity to affect change.”

In addition to leadership, all sororities and fraternities stress academics. Johnson said “At one point the Sammies went from last to first in academics and we’ve won the Community Service Award the last two years.”

Hill said everyone in the Sigma Nu chapter works hard on keeping their grades up. “If someone needs help, we study together.”

Grades are an important criteria to join a sorority or fraternity. “We look at the students’ GPA before they join,” said Hamilton. “Kappa Delta members must be in good standing or they can’t attend social functions. We had the highest scholastic standing of all Greeks this year.”

Alumni play a big role in every group. The Sammies have a chartered alumni group in Owensboro. Johnson said, “John Glover ’02 is president and Rob Kedenbury ’96 is chapter advisor. We have an alum at every meeting. They share ideas, help with rush, plan parties - they are extremely important to our chapter. Our alumni are knowledgeable and push us forward and keep us on track.”

Traditions! Through the years, the Greek system at KWC has enjoyed special traditions. James said, “The most significant tradition within the Sigma Nu chapter was White Rose weekend, our annual spring formal, where we would go out of town for the weekend.”

Crenshaw remembers events like May Day and Homecoming. “We had a lot of activities that included other Greeks, mostly parties as you might imagine.” Bishop described her personal favorite. “When a sister was lavaliered, pinned or engaged, she got thrown into the showers in the bathroom in Massie!”

Rob Brankamp ’84 served as president of Sigma Alpha Mu. “When I was a student, Greeks were the center of the on-campus social life. There was a party or dance every weekend in someone’s chapter room. No one went home. The fraternities worked together in a spirit of cooperation so the parties didn’t overlap.”

He continued, “We might have an ‘odd sock’ party and flag football in the Quad was also big. We came up with our own entertainment.”

Today at Kentucky Wesleyan, Greek Week is a tradition, with events like the roommate game, water wars, Mr. KWC and powder puff football, each sponsored by a different Greek organization.

The Greek system at Kentucky Wesleyan College continues to focus on philanthropy, academics and fun, but the one constant in every chapter is friendship. Those special memories and close friends will last a lifetime.

If you would like to reconnect with your chapter and get more information, please contact Catherine Sherrard who serves as KWC Greek advisor. You can reach her at 270-852-3287 or email Csherrar@kwc.edu.
When you start out teaching in a self-contained classroom at 18 years old, you might not imagine that one day you'd be the chair of the education department at a well-respected college. Work hard enough, though, and it's certainly possible. For proof, look no further than Dr. Yvonne Taylor ’58, Kentucky Wesleyan College’s distinguished professor of education who retired this spring after 16 years of service to the college.

Taylor came to KWC in 1989 after 29 years as a middle school reading and language arts teacher in the Hancock County public school system. She also spent six years as a supervisor of instruction in the central office there. "It was an absolute godsend for me," Taylor said about the KWC job. "It was just a capstone for my career. I wasn't ready for retirement. I intended to stay five years – I stayed 16."

Taylor’s background gave her a unique perspective as she trained future teachers. "That’s probably what made her most effective for us," said Jeanette Campbell ’01, who teaches seventh grade reading and writing at College View Middle School. "We knew she had been in the trenches."

“She wasn’t just talking from a textbook,” added Ben Arnold ’06, who coaches football and teaches at Warren East Middle School in Bowling Green. "She had a million stories about things she went through that we would eventually face."

For Taylor’s part, the students made her time at KWC worthwhile. "They really seemed to want to make the world a better place,” she said. “To be able to teach them is a pleasure. We have such strong graduates in classrooms all across the area. It’s really good to see the contributions they’re making."

As Taylor’s career shows, teaching is the perfect way to influence others. She can’t even count the thousands of students she’s affected, students who have found their own way into education and are now passing on the ideals they learned from Taylor. "She’s made a significant difference in the lives of the students with whom she’s worked," said Martha O’Bryan, the current chair of KWC’s education department. "I think that’s reflected in the high regard that they express anytime her name is brought up."

“She was wonderful,” Campbell said. “I liked how she pushed you. She made you do more than what you thought you could do.” “She really made you work,” Arnold said. "When you teach, you can’t be lazy – she wouldn’t let you be lazy either. She instills a work ethic in her students.”

At the same time, “To me, she was like a grandma,” Arnold said. “You could go and talk to her about anything. She’s a great cook. She had us over to her house. She took care of us.” “She related very well,” Campbell said. "She’s retired three times, been around a long time, (but) she’d get right in there with us. She knew the cool stuff on TV. She just knew everything. She’s an amazing woman."

Taylor served as chair of the education department for several years at KWC and then retired, but was lured back with the promise that she could just teach and leave the administrative work to someone else. Not that she wasn’t good at it – she revised the entire education program, building much more of the all-important classroom experience into the program and aligning classes to meet the state’s ever-changing regulations for qualified teachers.

But her heart was with the students. "Teaching is what she loves,” said O’Bryan, who has known her since they both worked in public schools. "In every experience, I have found her to be a dedicated professional with an excellent sense of humor who loves people first and learning is such a close second, it’s hard to even separate."

Taylor studied for two years of her college degree at KWC and then worked, but was lured back with the promise that she could just teach and leave the administrative work to someone else. Not that she wasn’t good at it – she revised the entire education program, building much more of the all-important classroom experience into the program and aligning classes to meet the state’s ever-changing regulations for qualified teachers.

But her heart was with the students. “Teaching is what she loves,” said O’Bryan, who has known her since they both worked in public schools. “In every experience, I have found her to be a dedicated professional with an excellent sense of humor who loves people first and learning is such a close second, it’s hard to even separate."

Taylor earned her doctorate from Vanderbilt University almost on a whim, taking classes with two former students while working full-time. "(We) said, ‘this would be fun,’” she said of the decision she made to pursue an advanced degree while only five years from retirement.

It’s to Kentucky Wesleyan’s everlasting benefit that Yvonne Taylor did earn that doctorate and return to her undergraduate roots to pass on a lifetime of knowledge. "She sets the bar for the type of employee KWC needs to look for," Arnold said. "She was always there, she worked hard. She was a good, moral, Christian example of what young professionals should strive for."
Gary Gallup, associate athletics director for external relations at Nicholls State University for the past five years, has been named the director of athletics. He comes to Kentucky Wesleyan with 30 years of experience in Division I intercollegiate athletics, including 10 years as a director of athletics.

His duties at the Thibodaux, La., school included the development and implementation of strategies to generate external financial support for the athletic department in addition to the overall operation and supervision of NSU’s 15-sport program.

Since 2001, he has generated over $3,000,000 in revenue and has increased corporate sponsors from eight to 60. Gallup also increased booster club membership from 90 to over 200 members annually and quadrupled revenues in the Colonel Club.

Gallup established an athletic merchandising program, organized annual athletic department fundraising events plus other fan participation activities. He expanded the Colonel Sport Radio Network, placing football and basketball games on two cable TV stations and two internet outlets.

A native of Roswell, N.M., he also served as the radio “Voice of the Colonels” for baseball, men’s and women’s basketball, football, and softball during his five seasons at NSU.

Before joining Nicholls State, Gallup spent three years as director of athletic marketing at the University of New Orleans.

Gallup graduated from the University of Texas-Dallas in 1986 with a degree in management. He and his wife, Sharon, have four children.

Five Panthers named All-Great Lakes Valley Conference

Five Panthers were named to the All-Great Lakes Valley Conference as selected by league coaches.

Softball (honorable mention) – Haleigh Ashworth, a freshman from Owensboro, led the softball Panthers on the mound with a 2.98 ERA, six wins, 68 strikeouts, 117.1 innings pitched, 14 complete games and 19 starts.

Baseball (honorable mention) – Jordan Bonyai, a senior second baseman from Ogden, Utah, batted a third leading .320 with 57 hits in 178 at bats.

Baseball (honorable mention) – Brandon Brooks, a senior right-hander from Owensboro, on the mound led KWC with six wins, 61 strikeouts, 83 innings pitched, three shutouts, 12 starts and eight complete games. He posted a second best 2.93 ERA in 14 appearances.

Basketball (honorable mention) – LaTasha Henry, a 5-foot-10 sophomore from Ashland, Ky., averaged a second-leading 12.4 points and 6.8 rebounds in 28 games and 22 starts.

Basketball (honorable mention) – Dewayne Rogers, a 6-foot-4, 215-pound senior from Munfordville, Ky., led the Panthers in scoring with 12.9 points, three-pointers made with 58 and minutes played with 35.2 in starting all 26 games.

George Tinsley and Antonio Garcia were named to the NCAA 50th Anniversary Division II Men’s Basketball Elite Eight 10-member team.

Tinsley, a 6-6 forward from Louisville, led the Panthers to four straight Elite Eight tournaments where they won three NCAA titles in 1966, 1968 and 1969, and finished third in 1967. He was twice chosen to the all-tournament team in 1968 and 1969, and received the Most Outstanding Player award in 1969. Tinsley averaged 15.9 points and 7.5 rebounds while shooting 47.1 percent from the field and 77.8 percent from the free throw line in 11 Elite Eight contests.

Garcia, a 6-8 center from Panama City, Panama, became one of three players in Elite Eight history to be named Most Outstanding Player twice when he accomplished the feat in 1998 and 1999. He helped KWC to a national runner-up finish in 1998 and the national championship in 1999 with a record setting 31-2 mark. Garcia averaged 15.7 points, 16.5 rebounds, 3.3 assists and 1.8 steals, and shot 61.7 percent from the field in six Elite Eight games.
Student-athletes set academic honors record

Forty-eight Kentucky Wesleyan College student-athletes were named to the 2006 Great Lakes Valley Conference All-Academic Team. This marks the most honorees in KWC athletic history for one season.

To be eligible, a student-athlete must be a starter or significant substitute and the student-athlete has a cumulative grade point average of at least 3.25 or has attained a GPA of at least 3.4 in each of the preceding two semesters. Freshmen or first-year transfers must achieve a GPA of 3.4 or higher during the academic year.

Simpson chosen head women’s soccer coach

Larry Simpson, assistant men’s soccer coach for the Panthers, was chosen as the Panthers head women’s soccer coach. His coaching stints include assistant men’s and women’s coach at Brescia University, boys and girls select teams for Owensboro United Soccer Club, and the Kentucky Olympic Development program.

Panthers to play Louisville in basketball

The Kentucky Wesleyan men’s basketball team will play an exhibition contest against the University of Louisville on Sunday, Nov. 19, at Freedom Hall (18,865) in Louisville. Game time for the UL contest will be announced at a later date. Ticket information will also be announced on a later date.

KWC returns to Winchester Campus

Kentucky Wesleyan College called Winchester, Ky. home for 61 years, from 1890 to 1951. On Saturday, October 28 at 2:00 p.m. ET, KWC returns to its old campus to play the Shorty Combs Purple White Game. The Panther women’s basketball team will play an intra-squad exhibition game to honor the memory of Virginia Harris “Shorty” Combs ’22, a pioneer of women’s basketball in Kentucky.

Another connection to the Winchester campus is Jessica Wilson, granddaughter of legendary KWC Coach Robert “Bullet” Wilson ’31. Jessica is a member of the women’s basketball team.

The game will be played in College Park Gym, the former Spencer Memorial Gymnasium, in Winchester. Admission is free; however donations will be accepted at the door and used to support the women’s basketball team.

Bratcher and Henshaw named cross country coaches

Kentucky Wesleyan College announced the appointment of Daviess County natives Willie Bratcher (men) and Tara Henshaw (women) as head coaches for the new cross country programs.

Bratcher, a longtime road-race competitor, joins KWC from Daviess County Middle School after serving one season as head coach. Prior to Daviess County, he spent four seasons as head coach at Burns Middle School where he led the Foxes to three consecutive Kentucky state titles and one runner-up finish.

Henshaw comes to KWC from her alma mater Apollo High School where she was boys and girls assistant track and field coach. She previously was the head coach for the boy’s team at Daviess County Middle School.

Henshaw, a four year letterwinner in cross country and track at Lindsey Wilson College, received All-Kentucky Intercollegiate Athletic Conference cross county honors four times and NAIA All-Region recognition as a senior.

Henshaw earned a bachelor’s degree from Lindsey Wilson in 2004.

Stevens and Hansen selected All-North Central Region

Kentucky Wesleyan baseball standouts Dusty Stevens (first team) and Nick Hansen (second team) received All-North Central Region honors by the American Baseball Coaches Association (ABCA) and Rawlings as voted on by region coaches. They also were named first team All-Great Lakes Valley Conference.

Stevens, a senior designated hitter from Owensboro, led the Panthers with a .358 batting average, 63 hits (tied), 16 doubles, and 38 RBIs.

Hansen, a senior outfielder from Live Oak, Calif., recorded a team best eight home runs, 63 hits (tied), 18 stolen bases, 190 at bats, 37 runs scored and a .526 slugging percentage in 54 games and 53 starts.

Kentucky Wesleyan College Honor Roll Societies

The rich heritage of Kentucky Wesleyan College is reflected through its honor societies. These societies recognize the gifts of individuals, whether alumni or other friends, to the college during the fiscal year 2005-06.

Founders Society ($25,000 and above) honors the founding of Kentucky Wesleyan in 1858 when the Kentucky Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church-South resolved to found a college, creating a tradition of excellence in higher education which continues today.

Trustee Associates Society ($10,000 to $24,999) honors the trustees of the college who through the years have committed themselves to the academic, financial, and social welfare of Kentucky Wesleyan College. Appointed in 1858, the Reverend William Creighton Dandy served as the first board chair.

Faculty Associates Society ($5,000 to $9,999) honors the prestigious faculty of Kentucky Wesleyan College, who through their loyalty to the college and dedication to their profession, enhance the liberal arts experience for our future leaders.

President Associates Society ($2,500 to $4,999) honors the 30 presidents of Kentucky Wesleyan who have contributed to its growth and development. Appointed in 1866, the Reverend Charles Taylor was the first president. Current president Anne Cairns Federlein, Ph.D. began her service to the college with the opening of the 2004-2005 academic year.

Membership in the society is an investment in future leaders. A gift of $1,000 to $2,499 honors the community and alumni of the Owensboro, Kentucky, campus. In 1951 Owensboro became the third and current location of the college. A gift of $250 to $999 honors the community and alumni of Winchester, Kentucky, the second location of the college from 1890 to 1951. The 60-year Winchester years nurtured the college during World War I and the Depression eras, and continues to do so through the support of Kentucky Wesleyan alumni and friends from that period. A gift of $250 to $3,500 honors the first home of Kentucky Wesleyan until 1890. Millersburg, Kentucky, saw the founding of the college in 1858 and its third graduation, a class of one, in 1868.

Minerva Society recognizes persons who include the college in their estate plans. Through this society, members express today their commitment to strengthen Kentucky Wesleyan College in the future.

“To err is human, to forgive, divine.” - Alexander Pope.

Every effort has been made to proofread the various giving lists. If, for any reason, a name has been omitted or misspelled, please accept the apology of the Advancement Office. We value our friends and our alumni.

Please remember this Honor Roll lists the gifts received between July 1, 2005, and June 30, 2006. If we received your gift after that date, you will be recognized in the 2006 – 2007 Honor Roll.
